Bibliogov, United States, 2013. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 246 x 189 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .On July 1, 2007, Trade Promotion Authority (TPA -- formerly fast track) is set to expire, and with it a special authority that Congress grants to the President to negotiate certain trade agreements and to have their implementing bills considered under expedited legislative procedures, provided the President complies with certain statutory obligations. The procedures allow Congress to exercise its constitutional authority over trade, while giving the President added negotiating flexibility by assuring U.S. trade partners that final agreements are given swift and unamended consideration. The United States is currently engaged in multiple trade negotiations that may not be completed before TPA expires, raising the question of its renewal. TPA reflects years of debate, cooperation, and compromise between Congress and the Executive Branch. Congress has express constitutional authority to impose duties and regulate foreign commerce, while the President has the sole authority to negotiate international agreements and exerts broad power over U.S. foreign policy. TPA arose from a pragmatic need to accommodate these authorities in the conduct of U.S. trade policy, as well as address concerns that constituent pressures can often lead to poor trade policy decisions. The Smoot-Hawley Tariff Act of 1930, for example, raised tariffs significantly, diminishing trade and .
